

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor integrated circuit includes an internal circuit having first and second external terminals, first and second fuse elements, each having 5 first and second terminals, the first terminals of the first and second fuse elements being respectively connected to the first and second external terminals, and a discharge line connected to the second terminals of the first and second fuse elements and serving as 10 an electrostatic discharge current path.